

Contributors

Radim Ječný graduated at the University of Economics in Prague (2003). He works in the companies concerned with forwarding and rail business. Since 2016 he has been studying a post-graduate study programme at the University of Economics in Prague. His research is oriented toward the development of railways in the interwar period. Mail: radim.jecny@sbscargo.cz

Jan Slavíček received his master's degree in the Faculty of Arts, Charles University, as well as his doctoral degree in Modern Economic and Social History. He specializes in cooperative history, history of trade, economic history, political systems and theories, and criticism of totalitarianism. He works in the Historical Institute of the Czech Academy of Sciences. Mail: Jan\_slavicek@yahoo.cz

Jiří Štaif is professor of economic and social history at the Institute of Economic and Social history, Faculty of Arts, Charles University, Prague. His research is concerned upon social history in the long 19th century, revolution 1848, history of modern historiography, and theoretical problems of present time historical science. Recently he deals also with historical role of the different crises in modern society. Mail: staif@cmail.cz

Patrik Vedral studied Economic and Social History at Charles University in Prague. His researches deals with history from the end of the nineteenth century to the end of the first half of twentieth century. He mainly focuses on the history of the working class and on the development and transformation of mass social phenomena such as religion. Mail: patrikvedral@seznam.cz