

Contributors

Marek Loužek is an associate professor at the University of Economics in Prague. In years 2003–2013 he served as an analyst for the Centre for Economics and Politics in Prague and an advisor to the President of the Czech Republic. He authored seven monographs and a number of treatises published domestically as well as abroad. His articles have appeared in such journals as The World Economy, Post-Communist Economies, American Journal of Economics and Sociology, Prague Economic Papers, Politická ekonomie, and others). Email: louzek@post.cz

Tomáš Petráček, Professor of Social and Church history at the Department of Studies in Culture and Religion, Faculty of Education, University of Hradec Králové. His researches are concerned with topics in modern church and social history, history of secularisation, modernist and antimodernist crisis in the Catholic Church. Email: tomas.petracek@uhk.cz

Václav Rameš, graduated from Charles University in Prague (Institute for Economic and Social History, Faculty of Arts), currently finishing doctoral research at the Institute of Czech History. Research interest: socialism, post-socialism, social and economic history, history of ideas. Email: rames@usd.cas.cz.

Monika Stachová is a postgraduate student at the Institute of Economic and Social History, Faculty of Arts, Charles University. Apart from that, she studies master's program Political Theory and Historical Sociology at Charles University. Her thematic field is minority and identity policy in Slovakia, with an emphasis on German and Romani history in the 20th century.