

Contributors

Lucie Cviklová has a M.A. from Charles University (Prague), a M.A. from New School for Social Research (New York) and Ph.D. in political science from Paris Nanterre University. Her main areas of research interest are Critical Theory, evolution of human rights, feminism, globalization issues, history of ideas and intercultural communication. She has lectured at Czech and international universities for more than twenty years and currently has been affiliated with the Faculty of Arts, University of Hradec Králové. Contact: lucie.cviklova@yahoo.com

Michael Dudzik is a PhD student at the Department of Economic and Social History, Faculty of Arts, Charles University. He deals with French economic history from the mid-18th to the first third of the 19th century, focusing on civil engineers and the construction of land and waterways. Among other things, his research is concerned with the role of the state in the political, economic, social, educational affairs. Contact: dudzikm@ff.cuni.cz

Daria Murzina is a student of a master's at the Charles University, Catholic Theological Faculty, History of European Culture. She received a bachelor's degree in History at the same Faculty. Her interests research focuses on the history of the 19th century across individual states and global phenomena with close connection history, literature, and art of the Ancient Age of Heroes. She is interested in "Schliemannforschung", too. Contact: tennisniemiachikinebes@mail.ru

Jakub Rákosník is an associate professor at the Department of Economic and Social History, Faculty of Arts, Charles University. His research is concerned with history of the welfare state, working class movement, and theory of historiography. Currently he is involved in the projects dealing with technocratic movement and population policies. Contact: jakub.rakosnik@ff.cuni.cz

Jan Štemberk works at the Department of Historical sciences, Faculty of Humanities, Charles University and Department of Tourism of Faculty of International Relations, University of Economics and Business Prague. After completing his master's degree in history, Slovenian studies and law, he continued his doctoral studies at the Department of Economic and Social History, Faculty of Arts, Charles University. In 2011, he received his habilitation in the field of economic and social history. In his professional activities, he is concerned with modern economic and social history, focusing on the history of transport, tourism and economic administration. He is the author of five monographs and several dozens of studies. Contact: Jan.Stemberk@fhs.cuni.cz

